RAVENSCOURT PARK DISCOVERY HUNT

Walk through Ravenscourt Park with your little one and look for things you haven't noticed before. Keep your eyes and ears open for trees, flowers, birds, insects, or other interesting spots around the park. Encourage your child to notice colours, shapes, and textures. Invite them to point out one thing they find exciting, funny, or beautiful.

You can make a little "Discovery Map" together as you go, marking the new things you find and where you saw them.

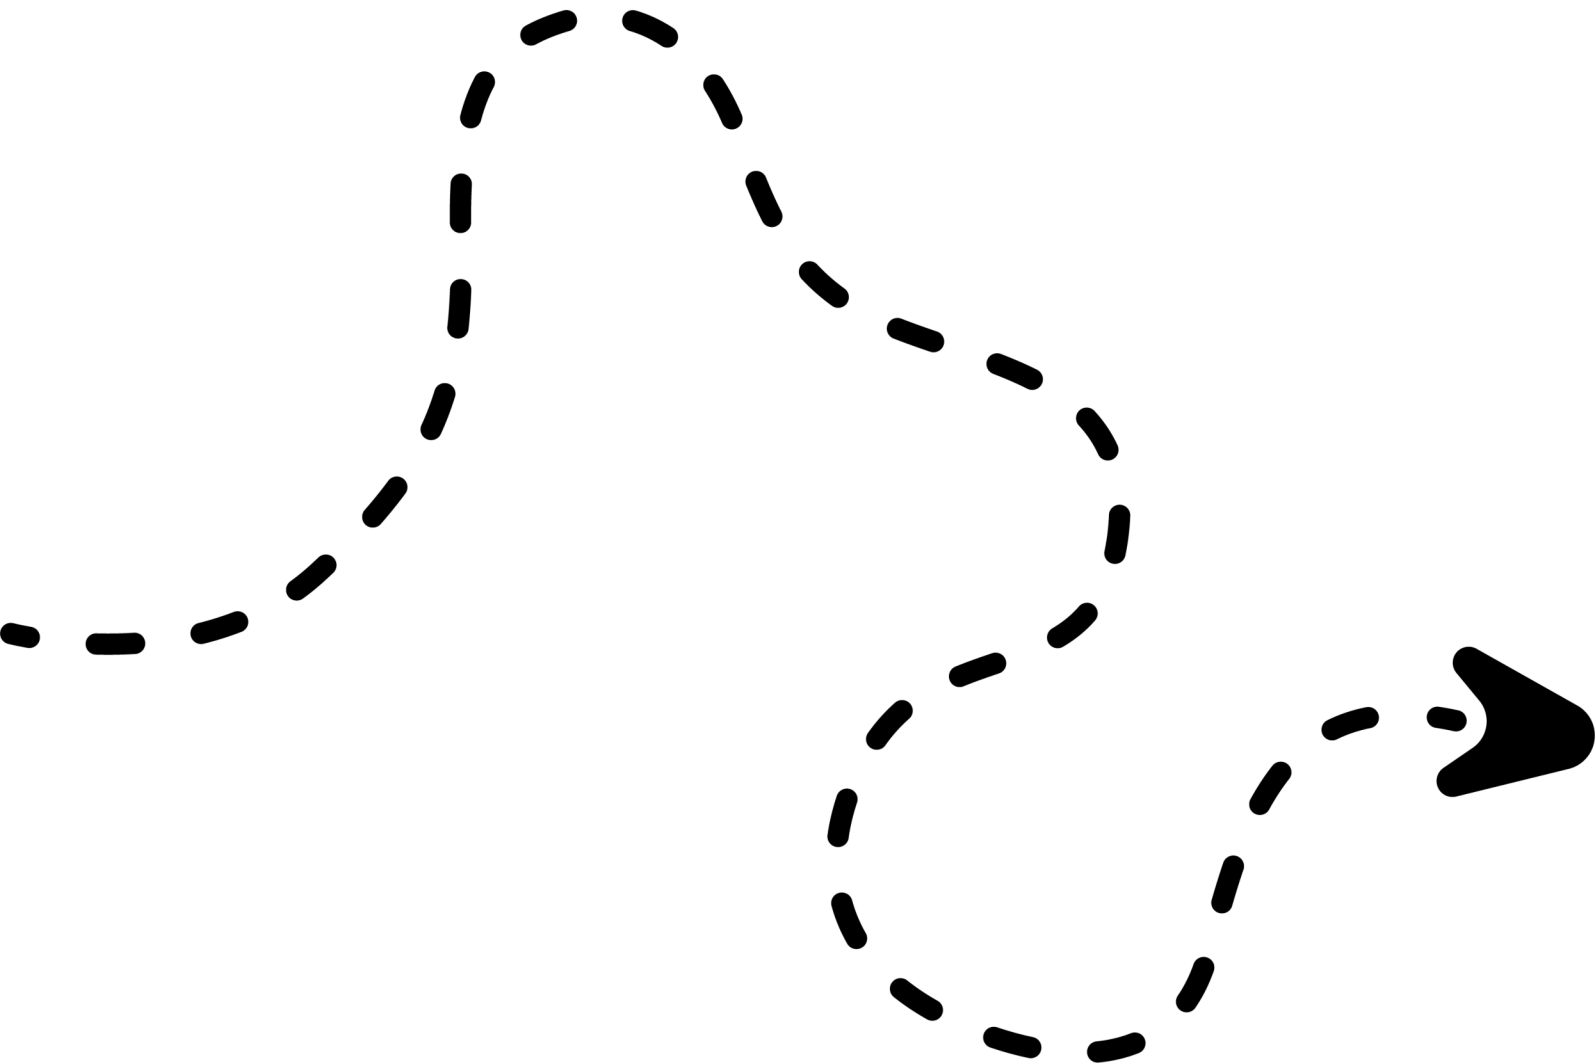

Ravenscourt Park has wide paths, open spaces, and lots of plants and wildlife, perfect for little explorers to notice, enjoy, and remember!

Noticing and remembering details like colours, shapes, and sounds helps children build attention, memory, and curiosity skills. You can do this across different seasons to see how the park changes!

RAVENSCOURT PARK DISCOVERY MAP

Plot the new things you notice in the park on your map. Draw, write and colour what you found and where you saw it. Use this activity sheet for many park trips, and watch your discoveries grow with each visit!
